Power to remove difficulties.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

Despite the fact that concerted efforts have been made to eliminate the dehumanising practice of employing persons for carrying human excreta on their heads or like wise, the practice still persists in certain parts of the country. It is, therefore, proposed to prohibit the said practice by making the employment or engagement of manual scavengers a punishable offence. Further, a massive centrally sponsored programme is under implementation for conversion of dry latrines into, and construction of new water-seal latrines in buildings. On completion of the programme in a State, it has to declare itself as a manual scavenger free State. In order to supplement the existing efforts for complete elimination of dry latrines and to ensure the construction of water-seal latrines in all buildings, it is also proposed to make constructions or maintenance of dry latrines as a punishable offence.

2. It is also felt that the existing municipal laws are not stringent enough to eliminate the practice. However, as the subject-matter—"manual scavenging", in pith and substance, falls under the State List, suitable uniform legislation for the whole of India could not be made without the necessary resolutions being passed by the various State legislature. The legislatures of the States of Goa, Karnataka, Maharashtra, Tripura and West Bengal have passed the necessary resolutions in pursuance of clause (1) of article 252 of the Constitution empowering Parliament to undertake the legislation for prohibiting employment of manual scavengers as well as construction or continuance of dry latrines and for the regulation of construction and maintenance of water-seal latrines and for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto.

3. The Bill inter alia, provides for—

- (a) making employment or engaging of manual scavenger a punishable offence;
- (b) formulation of various schemes for conversion of dry latrines into water-seal latrines, rendering of technical and financial assistance for new or alternative low cost sanitation to local bodies and other agencies, construction and maintenance of community latrines and regulation of their use on pay and use basis, construction and maintenance of shared latrines in slum areas for the benefit of socially and economically backward classes of citizens, registration of manual scavengers and their rehabilitation through alternative employments, etc., and financing by the Housing and Urban Development Corporation Limited or other agencies for the construction of water-seal latrines or conversion of dry latrines into water-seal latrines;
- (c) proper implementation of the legislation by the State Governments through the Executive Authorities;
- (d) the appointment of proper inspection staff;
- (e) constitution of Project Committees for appraising of the schemes for the construction of waterseal latrines in the country and Monitoring Committees, for the monitoring of the progress of the schemes, etc., by the Central Government.
- (f) constitution of State Co-ordination Committees and such other committees by the State Governments as may be necessary for the proper co-ordination of the programmes under the legislation.

4. The Bill seeks to achieve the above objects.

NEW DELHI;

SHEJLA KAUL.

The 1st March, 1993.

FINANCIAL MEMORANDUM

Sub-clause (1) of clause 13 of the Bill provides that the Central Government may, by notification, constitute Project Committees, Monitoring Committees and such other committees for the proper implementation of the Act. Similarly, vide sub-clause (4) of the said clause 13, the State Governments are empowered to constitute State Co-ordination Committees and other Committees. Sub-clause (3) of clause 13 provides that the members of the Committees constituted by the Central Government shall be paid such fees and allowances as may be prescribed by rules for attending the meetings of the Committees. The members of the State Committees are also to be paid such fees and allowances for attending the meetings as may be prescribed by the State Government. In respect of the Committees as may be constituted by the Central Government as well as in respect of the Committees as may be constituted by the Union territory administrations without legislature expenditure shall have to be borne out of the Consolidated Fund of India. It is estimated that a recurring expenditure of Rs. 10,000/- shall be required annually for meeting the above expenditure. During the current financial year i.e. 1992-93, it is estimated that the above expenditure may be to the tune of Rs. 5000/-.

2. There shall be no non-recurring expenditure.

MEMORANDUM REGARDING DELEGATED LEGISLATION

Clause 4 of the Bill empowers the State Government to issue general or special orders, published in the Official Gazette, exempting, upon such conditions as it may think fit, any area, category of buildings or class of persons from any provisions of the Bill or from any specified requirement contained in the Bill or any rule, order, notification or scheme made thereunder or dispense with the observance of any such requirements in a class or classes of cases, if it is satisfied that compliance with such provisions or such requirements is or ought to be exempted or dispensed within the circumstances of the case.

2. Clause 6 of the Bill empowers the State Government to make one or more schemes, by notification in the Official Gazette, for regulating conversion of dry latrines into, or construction and maintenance of, water-seal latrines, rehabilitation of the persons who were engaged or employed as manual scavengers in any area in respect of which a notification under sub-clause (1) of clause 3 of the Bill has been issued in gainful employment and for administration of such schemes. Sub-clause (2) of the said clause 6 enumerates the matters in respect of which such schemes may be made. Different schemes may be made for different areas and for different purposes of the proposed legislation provided that the schemes involving financial assistance from the HUDCO are required to be made after consulting them.

3. Clause 22 of the Bill empowers the Central Government to make rules, by notification in the Official Gazette, for carrying out the provisions of the Bill. Such rules may be made, inter alia, to prescribe the composition of the Project Committees, Monitoring Committees and other Committees constituted by the Central Government under sub-clause (1) of clause 16 of the Bill, the powers, functions and the number of members of such Committees, their terms and conditions of appointment and the fees and allowances to be paid to the members of the committees so constituted.

4. Clause 23 of the Bill empowers the State Government to make rules, by notification in the Official Gazette, except where the Central Government is or has been required to make rules, for carrying out the provisions of the Bill. Such rules may be made inter alia, to prescribe the composition of the State Co-ordination Committees and other Committees constituted by the State Government under sub-clause (4) of section 13 of the Bill, the powers, functions and the number of members of such Committees, their terms and conditions of appointment, the fees and allowances to be paid to such members, etc.

5. Every scheme and every rule made by the State Government under clause 6 and clause 23 respectively is required to be laid before the State legislature and every rule made by the Central Government under clause 22 is required to be laid before Parliament.

6. The delegation of legislative power under the aforesaid provisions relate to matters or procedure or administrative detail or to matters in respect of which it is not practicable to make detailed provisions. Hence, the delegation of legislative power is of a normal character.

there exists a likelihood of confusion on the part of the public, which includes the likelihood of association with the earlier trade mark.

- (a) is identical with or similar to an earlier trade mark; and
- (b) is to be registered for goods or services which are not similar to those for which the earlier trade mark is registered in the name of a different proprietor, shall not be registered if or to the extent the earlier trade mark has a reputation in India and the use of the later mark without due cause would take unfair advantage of or be detrimental to the distinctive character or repute of the earlier trade mark.

(3) A trade mark shall not be registered if, or to the extent that, its use in India is liable to be prevented—

- (a) by virtue of any law in particular the law of passing off protecting an unregistered trade mark used in the course of trade; or

(4) Nothing in this section shall prevent the registration of a trade mark where the proprietor of the earlier trade mark or other earlier right consents to the registration, and in such case the Registrar may register the mark under special circumstances under section 12.

Explanation I.—For the purposes of this section, earlier trade mark means,—

- (a) a registered trade mark or convention application referred to in section 155 which has a date of application earlier than that of the trade mark in question, taking account, where appropriate, of the priorities claimed in respect of the trade marks;
- (b) a trade mark which, on the date of the application for registration of the trade mark in question, or where appropriate, of the priority claimed in respect of the application, was entitled to protection as a well-known trade mark.

Explanation II.—In determining whether a trade mark is well-known, account shall be taken of the knowledge of that trade mark in the relevant section of the public including knowledge in India obtained as a result of promotion of the trade mark.

(5) A trade mark shall not be refused registration on the grounds specified in sub-sections (2) and (3), unless objection on any one or more of those grounds is raised in opposition proceedings by the proprietor of the earlier trade mark.

12. In the case of honest concurrent use or of other special circumstances which, in the opinion of the Registrar, make it proper so to do, he may permit the registration by more than one proprietor of the trade marks which are identical or nearly resemble each other (whether any such trade mark is already registered or not) in respect of—

- (a) the same goods or services; or
- (b) the same description of goods or services; or names.

Use of names and representations of living persons or persons recently dead.

Registration of Parts of trade marks and of trade marks as a series.

14. Where an application is made for the registration of a trade mark which falsely suggests a connection with any living person, or a person whose death took place within twenty years prior to the date of application for registration of the trade mark, the Registrar may, before he proceeds with the application, require the applicant to furnish him with the consent in writing of such living person or, as the case may be, of the legal representative of the deceased person to the connection appearing on the trade mark, and may refuse to proceed with the application unless the applicant furnishes the Registrar with such consent.

15. (1) Where the proprietor of a trade mark claims to be entitled to the exclusive use of any part thereof separately, he may apply to register the whole and the part as separate trade marks.

(2) Each such separate trade mark shall satisfy all the conditions applying to, and have all the incidents of, an independent trade mark.

(3) Where a person claiming to be the proprietor of several trade marks in respect of the same goods or services or description of goods or description of services which, while resembling each other in the material particulars thereof, yet differ in respect of—

- (a) statement of the goods or services in relation to which they are respectively used or proposed to be used; or
- (b) statement of number, price, quality or names of places; or
- (c) other matter of a non-distinctive character which does not substantially affect the identity of the trade mark; or
- (d) colour,

seeks to register those trade marks, they may be registered as a series in one registration.

Registration of trade marks as associated trade marks.

16. (1) Where a trade mark which is registered, or is the subject of an application for registration, in respect of any goods or services is identical with another trade mark which is registered, or is the subject of an application for registration, in the name of the same proprietor in respect of the same goods or description of goods or same services or description of services or so nearly resembles it as to be likely to deceive or cause confusion if used by a person other than the proprietor, the Registrar may, at any time, require that the trade marks shall be entered on the register as associated trade marks.

(2) Where there is an identity or near resemblance of marks that are registered, or are the subject of applications for registration in the name of the same proprietor in respect of goods, and in respect of services which are associated with those goods or goods of that description and with those services or services of that description, sub-section (1) applies as it applies as where there is an identity or near resemblance of marks that are registered, or are the subject of applications for registration, in the name of the same proprietor in respect of the same goods or description of goods or same services or description of services.

(3) Where a trade mark and any part thereof are, in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1) of section 15, registered as separate trade marks in the name of the same proprietor, they shall be deemed to be, and shall be registered as, associated trade marks.

(4) All trade marks registered in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (3) of section 15 as a series in one registration shall be deemed to be, and shall be registered as, associated trade marks.

(5) On application made in the prescribed manner by the registered proprietor of two or more trade marks registered as associated trade marks, the Registrar may dissolve the association as respects any of them if he is satisfied that there would be no likelihood of deception or confusion being caused if that trade mark were used by any other person in relation to any of the goods or services or both in respect of which it is registered, and may amend the register accordingly.

17. (1) When a trade mark consists of several matters, its registration shall confer on the proprietor exclusive right to the use of the trade mark taken as a whole.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1), when a trade mark—

(a) contains any part—

(i) which is not the subject of a separate application by the proprietor for registration as a trade mark; or

(ii) which is not separately registered by the proprietor as a trade mark; or

(b) contains any matter which is common to the trade or is otherwise of a non-distinctive character, the registration thereof shall not confer any exclusive right in matter forming only a part of the whole of the trade mark so registered.

(ii) that the proprietor or the registered user misrepresented, or failed to disclose, some fact material to the application for registration, which if accurately represented or disclosed would not have justified the registration of the registered user;

(iii) that the circumstances have changed since the date of registration in such a way that at the date of such application for cancellation they would not have justified registration of the registered user;

(iv) that the registration ought not to have been effected having regard to rights vested in the applicant by virtue of a contract in the performance of which he is interested;

(d) may be cancelled by the Registrar of his own motion or on the application in writing in the prescribed manner of any person, on the ground that any stipulation in the agreement between the registered proprietor and the registered user regarding the quality of the goods or services in relation to which the trade mark is to be used is either not being enforced or is not being complied with;

(2) If the registered proprietor fails to furnish the confirmation within one month as required under sub-section (1), the registered user shall cease to be the registered user on the day immediately after the expiry of the said period and the Registrar shall notify the same.

52. (1) Subject to any agreement subsisting between the parties, a registered user may institute proceedings for infringement in his own name as if he were the registered proprietor, making the registered proprietor a defendant and the rights and obligations of such registered user in such case being concurrent with those of the registered proprietor.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law, a registered proprietor so added as defendant shall not be liable for any costs unless he enters an appearance and takes part in the proceedings.

53. A person referred to in sub-clause (ii) of clause (p) of sub-section (1) of section 2 shall have no right to institute any proceeding for any infringement.

54. Nothing in this Act shall confer on a registered user of a trade mark any assignable or transmissible right to the use thereof.

(3) Notwithstanding anything in section 32, the use of part of the registered trade mark in sub-section (2) shall not be conclusive as to its evidence of distinctiveness for any purpose under the Act.

(2) The use of a registered trade mark in relation to goods or services between which and the person using the mark any form of connection in the course of trade subsists shall not be deemed to be likely to cause deception or confusion on the ground only that the mark has been or is used in relation to goods or services between which and the said person or a predecessor in title of that person a different form of connection in the course of trade subsisted or subsists.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958 has served its purpose over the last three decades. It was felt that a comprehensive review of the existing law be made in view of developments in trading and commercial practices, increasing globalisation of trade and industry, the need to encourage investment flows and transfer of technology, need for simplification and harmonization of the trade mark management systems and to give effect to important judicial decisions. To achieve these purposes, the present Bill proposes to incorporate, inter alia, the following, namely:—

- (a) providing for registration of trade mark for services, in addition to goods;
- (b) registration of trade marks which are imitation of well known trade marks is not to be permitted, besides enlarging the grounds for refusal of registration mentioned in clauses 9 and 11. Consequently, the provisions for defensive registration of trade marks are proposed to be omitted;
- (c) doing away with the system of maintaining registration of trade marks in Part A and Part B with different legal rights, and to provide only a single register with simplified procedure for registration and with equal rights;
- (d) simplifying the procedure for registration of registered user and enlarging the scope of permitted use;
- (e) providing for registration of trade marks to "Collective Marks" owned by the associations, etc.;
- (f) establishing an Appellate Board for speedy disposal of the appeals and rectification applications which at present lie before High Court;
- (g) transferring the final authority relating to registration of certification trade marks to the Registrar instead of the Central Government;
- (h) providing enhanced punishment for the offences relating to trade marks on par with the present Copyright Act, 1957, to prevent the sale of spurious goods;
- (i) prohibiting use of some one else's trade marks as part of corporate name, or name of business concern;
- (j) incorporating other provisions, like amending the definition of 'trademarks', provisions for filling a single application for registration in more than one class, increasing the period of registration and renewal from 7 to 10 years; making trade mark offences cognizable, enlarging the jurisdiction of courts to bring the law in this respect on par with the copyright law, amplifying the powers of the court to grant ex parte injunction in certain cases and other related amendments to simplify and streamline the trade mark law and procedure.

2. In view of the extensive amendments necessitated in the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958, it has been thought fit to repeal and re-enact the said Act incorporating the necessary changes.

3. The Bill seeks to achieve the above object. The Notes on clauses explain various provisions of the Bill.

NEW DELHI;

KRISHNA SAHI.

Notes on clauses

Clause 1.—This clause provides for appointment of different dates for commencement of different provisions of the Act, because some of the provisions in the Bill, like extending the registration of trade marks to services, and setting up of Appellate Board are new and necessary mechanism will have to be provided and therefore adequate steps will have to be taken for administering these provisions, which may take some time. Necessary proviso is, therefore, proposed to be added to sub-clause (3) for this purpose.

Clause 2.—This clause contains definitions and interpretations. While some new definitions have been added, some of the definitions existing in the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958 have been made comprehensive and amplified. The new definitions which have been added are "Appellate Board", "Bench", "Chairman", "collective mark", "Member", "notify" and "services". With the proposal for establishment of an Appellate Board for considering appeals against the orders/decisions of the Registrar, the term "Appellate Board" along with related expressions of "Bench", "Chairman" and "Member" have been included in the definition. The provision for registration of "collective marks" is new and suitable definition has been included for the purpose. The expression "services" has been defined, as the Bill envisages registration of trade mark not only for "goods" but also for "services" which will include within its scope service relating to advertising and business, insurance and finance, construction and repair, transport and storage, material treatment, boarding and lodging, education and entertainment.

The existing definition of the expression "certification trade mark" has been modified to include services. The definition of "mark" has been enlarged to include the shape of goods, packaging and combination of colours. The definition of "permitted use" has been amplified to cover use both by the registered user and the licensee, as the latter becomes entitled to use the mark by virtue of the agreement with the registered proprietor. The definition of "trade mark" has also been enlarged to mean a mark capable of being represented graphically and to include shape of goods, their packaging and combination of colours and covers both goods and services. The definition of "Tribunal" has been modified to include "Appellate Board" in place of "High Court". The definition of "registered trade mark" has been modified to mean a trade mark which is actually on the Register and remaining in force. The existing definition of "High Court" is proposed to be deleted consequent to the proposal to constitute Appellate Board in lieu of High Court, for appeals.

A new sub-clause (3) is proposed to be added to clarify that goods and services may be associated with each other, if it is likely that those goods may be sold or otherwise traded in and those services may be provided by the same business. Sub-clause (4) seeks to define the term "the existing registered trade mark" to mean a trade mark registered under the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958 immediately before the commencement of this Act.

Clause 3.—This clause corresponds to section 4 of the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958 and provides for appointment of the Registrar and other officers.

Clause 4.—This clause seeks to empower the Registrar to withdraw any matter pending before an officer and deal with such matter himself or transfer the same to another officer for reasons to be recorded therein. This provision broadly corresponds to section 73(4) of the Patents Act, 1970. The purpose of this is to ensure better management of the work in the Trade Marks Registry and in administration of the Act.

Clause 5.—This clause deals with the establishment of the Trade Marks Registry and branch offices and corresponds to section 5 of the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958. This clause provides that the Trade Marks Registry established under the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958 shall continue to be the Trade Marks Registry for the purposes of this Act.

Clause 6.—This clause contains provisions regarding maintenance of a single Register of Trade Marks (in lieu of existing Part A and Part B Register) at Head Office wherein particulars of registered trade marks and other prescribed particulars, except notice of trust, shall be recorded. A copy of the Register is to be kept at each branch office. This clause is in line with section 6 of the existing Act.

Clause 7.—This clause provides for classification of goods and services which shall as far as possible conform to the recognised International Classification of goods and services.

Clause 8.—This clause provides for the publication of an alphabetical index of classification of goods and services. This is a new provision.

Clause 9.—Section 9 of the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958 is proposed to be replaced by a comprehensive new provision consequent to the proposed amendments of—

(a) definition of "trade mark" to mean inter alia a mark capable of distinguishing the goods or services of one person from those of others, and

(b) to have only a single Register (with no Part A or Part B).

Sub-clause (1) stipulates what constitutes absolute grounds for refusal of registration. It is proposed to explicitly stipulate that the marks which are devoid of any distinctive character or which consist exclusively of marks or indications which may serve in trade to designate the kind, quality, quantity, intended purpose, etc., or trade marks which consist exclusively of marks or indications which have become customary in the current language or in the bona fide and established practice of the trade shall not be registered, unless it is shown that the mark has in fact acquired a distinctive character as a result of use before the date of application. In short, a trade mark which has been demonstrated to be distinctive in the market place shall be regarded as distinctive in law as well and be registrable. This will help in overcoming the difficulties faced by the applicants at present in registration of trade marks, e.g., which are based on geographical names or laudatory epithets, but which have in fact acquired distinctiveness by reason of use.

Sub-clause (2) contains provisions similar to what are at present contained in section 11 of the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958 but with minor addition of reference to the Emblems and Names (Prevention of Improper Use) Act, 1950 to make the law self-contained.

Sub-clause (3) prohibits registration of a mark, if it consists exclusively of shape of goods which result from the nature of the goods themselves or which is necessary to obtain a technical result or which gives substantial value to the goods.

Clause 10.—This clause corresponds to section 10 of the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958 with the consequent modification relating to combination of colours.

Clause 11.—With the transfer of some of the provisions contained in existing section 11 of the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958, to sub-clause (2) of clause 9, clause 11 has been recast to lay down the relative grounds for refusal of registration. Sub-clause (1) has been recast on the lines of sub-section (1) of section 12 of the existing Act making the grounds of refusal more specific and explicit so as to provide that where there exists a likelihood of confusion on the part of the public because of the identity with an earlier trade mark or similarity of goods or services, the trade mark shall not be registered.

It is proposed that the registration of a mark which is merely reproduction or imitation of well-known mark should not be allowed. Accordingly, sub-clause (2) seeks to provide that where the goods or services are not similar and the use of trade mark identical with or similar to an earlier trade mark without due cause would take unfair advantage of or be detrimental to the distinctive character or repute of the earlier trade mark, shall not be registered.

Sub-clause (3) lays down that a trade mark shall not be registered, if or to the extent that, its use will be prevented by law of passing off or under the law of copyright. However, sub-clause (4) permits registration where the proprietor consents to such registration. The Explanation I proposed in this section defines the term "earlier trade mark" to mean (a) a registered trade mark or a convention application (clause 155) which has a date of application earlier than the trade mark in question or (b) a trade mark, which on the date of application or on the date of priority claimed is entitled to protection as a well-known trade mark.

It is also proposed in Explanation II to clarify that in determining whether a trade mark is well-known, account shall be taken of the knowledge of that trade mark in the relevant section of the public, including knowledge in the country obtained as a result of the promotion of the trade mark in a manner or through a communication media available in India.

Sub-clause (5) lays down that the trade mark shall not be refused registration on the ground specified in sub-clauses (2) and (3) unless objection on that ground is raised in opposition proceedings by the proprietor of the earlier trade mark. This will put the burden of proof in this respect on the opponent opposing the registration on the grounds specified therein.

Clause 12.—This clause provides for registration of same or similar trade mark by more than one proprietor in the case of honest concurrent use or other special circumstances. This clause substantially corresponds to sub-section (3) of section 12 of the existing Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958 with additional provision relating to services.

Clause 13.—This clause corresponds to section 13 of the existing Act with the additional provision that international non-proprietary names declared by World Health Organisation from time to time or deceptively similar names shall not be registered as trade marks.

Clause 14.—This clause, which deals with use of names and representations of living persons or persons recently dead, is identical with the provisions contained in section 14 of the existing Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958.

Clause 15.—This clause provides for registration of parts of trade marks and of trade marks as a series subject to certain conditions enumerated therein. This corresponds to section 15 of the existing Act, except consequential amendments to cover services.

Clause 16.—This clause deals with association of trade marks. Sub-clause (1) is reproduction of sub-section (1) of section 16 of the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958 except the amendment relating to services. Sub-clause (2) is consequential to the introduction of new provision for association of goods and services proposed in clause 2(3). Sub-clauses (3), (4) and (5) correspond to sub-sections (2), (3) and (4) of section 16 of the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958.

Clause 17.—This clause which deals with the effect of registration of parts of a mark seeks to omit the provision relating to requirement of disclaimer and to explicitly state the general proposition that the registration of a trade mark confers exclusive right to the use of the trade mark taken as a whole and not separately to each of its constituent parts, if any.

Clause 18.—This clause deals with the procedure for making an application for registration. At present separate applications are required to be made if the applicants desire to register a trade mark in more than one class. Sub-clause (2) has been amended to permit registration in several classes of goods or services by means of a single application. However, the fee payable is to be calculated on the basis of the number of classes in which registration is sought. In other respects, the clause corresponds to existing section 18 of the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958.

Clause 19.—This clause provides for withdrawal of acceptance of an application, before its registration, when the acceptance is in error, etc., after hearing the applicant. This provision is the same as in the corresponding section 19 of the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958.

Clause 20.—This clause provides for advertisement of an application, either after acceptance or before acceptance, so as to afford the public an opportunity to oppose the registration of the mark. The provision follows section 20 of the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958.

Clause 21.—This clause deals with the procedure for opposition to registration of a trade mark. This is substantial reproduction of the provisions contained in sections 21 and 22(b) of the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958. Sub-clause (6) provides for payment of security for costs in the case of persons who do not reside or carry on business in India.

Clause 22.—This clause which corresponds to section 22 of the existing Act, provides for correction of any error in or in connection with the application or amendment of the application either before or after acceptance of the application.

Clause 23.—This clause makes it mandatory on the Registrar to register the trade mark where the procedure for registration of a trade mark has been completed viz. the application has been accepted and either the application has not been opposed or the opposition has been dismissed. The words "unless the Central Government otherwise directs" occurring in the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958 are proposed to be deleted as any such discretion is not considered necessary when the requirements for registrability of trade marks are clearly set out in the new law. Further, the reference to Part A and Part B has been omitted, which is consequential. In other respects, this clause corresponds to section 23 of the existing Act.

Clause 24.—This clause provides for registration of jointly owned trade marks where the mark is used or proposed to be used in relation to goods or services connected with all the joint applicants. This clause reproduces the provisions contained in section 24 of the existing Act and is also extended to services, which is consequential.

Clause 25.—The duration of registration is proposed to be increased from 7 to 10 years. This is in keeping with the generally accepted international practice and to reduce the workload of the Trade Marks Office. Sub-clause (2) provides for renewal of registration. Sub-clause (3) provides for removal and restoration of registration. Consequent to the provision proposed in sub-clause (1) of clause 25, renewal of registration is permissible for successive periods of 10 years from the date of the original registration or the last renewal.

To facilitate renewal or registration, sub-clause (4) provides for a grace period of six months for payment of renewal fee after expiry of registration, subject to payment of the prescribed surcharge. Sub-clause (5) provides for restoration of the trade mark to the register within one year in case it is not renewed even within the grace period of six months and the mark is removed. In other respect, the provision retains the provisions contained in section 25 of the existing Act.

Clause 26.—This clause states that where a trade mark has been removed from the register for failure to pay the renewal fee, it shall nevertheless, for the purpose of any application for the registration of another trade mark during one year next after the date of the removal, be deemed to be a trade mark already on the register. This corresponds in entirely to the provision contained in section 26 of the existing Act.

Clause 27.—This clause provides that no infringement action will lie in respect of an unregistered trade mark, but recognises the common law rights of the trade mark owner to take action against any person for passing off goods as the goods of another person or as services provided by another person or the remedies thereof. The clause thus retains the existing provision of section 27 in this respect, with the addition of services.

Clause 28.—This clause deals with the exclusive rights conferred by registration. The corresponds to the existing section 28 of the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958. This right has now been extended to include services also.

Clause 29.—This clause deals with infringement of trade marks and explicitly states as to the various acts which constitute infringement. Sub-clause (1) states the general proposition of the law in this respect and lays down that when a registered trade mark is used by a person who is not entitled to use such a trade mark under the law, it constitutes infringement. In pursuance of the relative grounds for refusal of registration specified in clause 11, the scope of this clause has been enlarged to explicitly state that a registered trade mark is infringed, if—

- (a) the mark is identical and is used in respect of similar goods; or
- (b) the mark is similar to the registered trade mark and there is an identity or similarity of the goods or services covered by the trade mark; or
- (c) the trade mark is identical and is used in relation to identical goods or services; and that such use is likely to cause confusion on the part of the public or is likely to be taken to have an association with the registered trade mark.

This clause further lays down that in cases falling in category (c) above, there will be a legal presumption of likelihood of confusion on the part of the public.

Sub-clause (4) seeks to lay down that a registered trade mark is infringed by a person, if he uses a mark which is identical or similar to the trade mark, but on goods or services which are not similar, provided the registered trade mark has a reputation in India and the use of the mark without due cause would take unfair advantage of or is detrimental to the distinctive character or repute of the registered trade mark.

Sub-clause (5) seeks to prevent a person from adopting someone else's trade mark as part of that person's trade name or business name by explicitly providing that such action shall also constitute an infringement under this Act. This provision will bring this clause in harmony with the proposed amendment to sections 20 and 22 of the Companies Act, 1956.

Sub-clause (6) lays down the circumstances when a person is considered to use a registered trade mark for the purpose of this clause. It includes inter alia affixing the mark to goods or packaging, offering or exposing the goods for sale or supply of services, importing or exporting the goods, the use of the mark as trade name or trade mark on business paper or in advertising.

Sub-clause (7) provides that where a person applies a registered trade mark under certain circumstances knowing that application of such mark was not authorised by the proprietor or licensee would be an infringing act of a registered mark.

Sub-clause (8) stipulates the circumstances when an advertising of a registered trade mark would constitute infringement. Advertising of a trade mark to take unfair advantage of, or against the honest commercial practices or which is detrimental to the distinctive character or which is against the reputation of the trade mark shall constitute an infringement.

Sub-clause (9) stipulates that where the distinctive element of a registered trade mark consists of words, the spoken use of such words as well as visual representation for promoting the sale of goods or promotion of service would constitute infringement.

Clause 30.—Clause 30 specifically excludes certain acts as not constituting infringement and broadly corresponds to section 30 of the existing Act. The law is proposed to be amplified by explicitly stating that there will be no infringement, if the use of a mark is in accordance with honest practices in industrial or commercial matters and is not such as to take unfair advantage of or be detrimental to the distinctive character or repute of a trade mark.

There is no infringement in the following cases:—

(1) Where the use is in relation to goods or services to indicate the kind, equality, quantity, etc., of the goods or of rendering of services.

(2) Use of the trade mark in a manner outside the scope of registration where a trade mark is registered subject to conditions or limitations.

(3) Where a person uses the mark in relation to goods or services for which the registered owner had once applied the mark, and had not subsequently removed it or impliedly consented to its use.

(4) A trade mark registered for any goods may be used in relation to parts and accessories to other goods, or services and such use is reasonably necessary and its effect is not likely to deceive as to the origin.

(5) The use of a registered trade mark being one of two or more registered trade marks which are identical or similar, in exercise of the right to the use of that registered trade mark.

Sub-clauses (3) and (4) recognise the principle of "exhaustion of rights" by preventing the trade mark owner from prohibiting on ground of trade mark rights, the marketing of goods in any geographical area, once the goods under the registered trade mark are lawfully acquired by a person. However, when the conditions of goods are changed or impaired after they have been put on the market, the provision will not apply.

Clause 31.—This clause states that registration including subsequent assignment and transmission, is prima facie evidence of validity. This corresponds to section 31 of the existing Act.

Clause 32.—With the proposed merger of Part A and Part B of the register into a single register, the existing provision in section 32 for presumption of conclusive validity of a trade mark in Part A of the register has become unnecessary. This section is, therefore, proposed to be replaced by the provision as in clause 32 of the Bill, by providing that where the validity of a trade mark is contested on the ground of distinctiveness, the court may take into consideration the distinctiveness acquired through use after registration for determining the validity of registration.

Clause 33.—This clause is new and contains provisions as to the effect of acquiescence. The proprietor of the earlier trade mark or other earlier right cannot contest the validity of registration of a subsequent trade mark, if he has acquiesced in the use of the subsequent trade mark for a continuous period of five years, unless he can prove that the registration of the subsequent trade mark was not obtained in good faith. Sub-clause (2) states that where sub-clause (1) applies, the proprietor of the later mark also is not entitled to oppose the use of the earlier trade mark.

Clause 34.—This clause provides for protecting the vested rights, so that the proprietor of registered trade mark or a registered user cannot interfere with the use of any identical or similar mark if the person has been using the mark from an earlier date. This clause corresponds to section 33 of the existing Act. This clause also covers services now.

Clause 35.—This clause corresponds to section 34 of the existing Act and provides that the registered proprietor or the registered user cannot interfere with any bona fide use by a person of his own name, or his predecessor in business, his place of business or bona fide description of the character or quality of the goods or services.

Clause 36.—This clause corresponds to section 35 of the existing Act. The purpose of this clause is to prevent a person from asserting any exclusive right, by virtue of trade mark or patent, over a word which has come to be associated as the name or description of an article. If there is a well-known and established use of the word in a descriptive sense, and that is the only practicable name or description of an article, the validity of registration of such word as trade mark can be challenged. The provisions of this clause extend to services.

Clause 37.—This clause recognises the right of registered proprietor to assign the trade mark for any consideration and give receipts. This corresponds to section 36 of the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958.

Clause 38.—This clause deals with the assignability and transmissibility of a registered trade mark whether with or without goodwill of the business either in respect of all goods or services or part thereof. This corresponds to section 37 of the existing Act. The only change which is consequential is in relation to the provision for registration of trade mark for services.

Clause 39.—Sub-clause (1) provides that any unregistered trade mark shall be assignable or transmissible only along with the goodwill of the business. However, sub-clause (2) provides exception to this rule if—

- (a) such unregistered trade mark is used in the same business as a registered trade mark; and
- (b) the registered trade mark is assigned at the same time and to the same person, as the unregistered trade mark; and
- (c) the unregistered trade mark relates to goods or services in respect of which the registered trade mark is assigned.

This clause corresponds to section 38 of the existing Act with necessary changes regarding services.

Clause 40.—This clause contains restriction on assignments or transmissions of trade mark where multiple exclusive rights would be created in more than one person, which would be likely to deceive or cause confusion. Nevertheless, such assignment is not deemed to be invalid, if having regard to the limitations imposed, the goods are to be sold in different markets—either within India or for exports. The provisions also apply to services. Sub-clause (2) lays down the procedure for obtaining a certificate for the purposes of assignment envisaged in sub-clause (1) and empowers the Registrar to issue certificate for the purpose as to whether or not the proposed assignment is valid. Unless obtained by fraud, the certificate as to validity shall be conclusive.

Clause 41.—Clauses 38 and 39 lay down the provisions regarding assignability and transmissibility of registered trade mark or unregistered trade mark along with the goodwill of business subject to provisions contained therein. Subject to these provisions this clause lays down the restriction on assignment or transmission so as to prevent splitting of rights of a trade mark on a territorial basis and creating rights on different persons in different parts of India. However, the Registrar has been conferred the power to approve such assignment or transmission if he is satisfied that it would not be contrary to public interest. This clause is the same as section 40 of the existing Act with necessary amendment only regarding services.

Clause 42.—This clause seeks to stipulate conditions for assignment of a trade mark without goodwill of business. Such an assignment will not take effect unless the assignor obtains directions of the Registrar and advertises the assignment as per the Registrar's directions and as per the procedure to be prescribed. The purpose of advertisement is to give notice of the assignment without goodwill of the business to the public. This clause explicitly states that the assignment of a trade mark in respect of only some of the goods or services with the goodwill of the business pertaining to those goods or services, or the assignment of a trade mark which is to be used only in relation to goods or services for export together with the goodwill of the export business only is not to be deemed as an assignment without goodwill of the whole of the business and in such cases, it would not be mandatory to obtain directions of the Registrar. This clause follows the existing provision in section 41 of the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958, with consequential changes relating to services.

Clause 43.—This clause deals with the assignability and transmissibility of certification trade marks. Assignment of certification trade mark can only be done with the consent of the Registrar. Consequent to the proposal to vest the final authority for disposal of applications for certification trade marks on the Registrar, this clause seeks to make necessary change in the law by the substitution of the word "Registrar" for the words "Central Government".

Clause 44.—This clause requires that associated trade marks shall be assignable and transmissible only as a whole but they will be treated as separate trade marks for all other purposes. It corresponds to the provision contained in section 43 of the existing Act.

Clause 45.—This clause deals with the procedure for registration of assignment and transmission and broadly follows the provisions contained in section 44 of the existing Act. Where the validity of an assignment is in dispute between the parties, the Registrar may refuse to register such transaction unless the rights of parties are determined by the competent court.

Sub-clause (2) lays down that any instruments or documents on the basis of which no entry has been made under sub-section (1), is not admissible in evidence before the Registrar or any court.

Clause 46.—Section 18 of the existing Act provides that an application for registration of a trade mark may be made only by a person who is using or proposing to use the trade mark himself. Clause 46 contains two exceptions providing for registration of a trade mark—(1) by a person who proposes to assign the trade mark to a company to be formed and registered under the Companies Act, 1956 and (2) by a person who proposes to use the trade mark by a registered user as and when the mark is registered. The latter provision seeks to give effect to Supreme Court decision in "DRISTAN" case. This clause further provides that where the said trade mark is not assigned to the company mentioned in clause (1) above, the registration of such a trade mark shall cease to have effect after expiration of the prescribed period.

Clause 47.—This clause corresponds to section 46 of the existing Act and provides for removal of a trade mark from the register on the ground of non-use. A trade mark which is not used within five years of its registration, becomes liable for removal either completely or in respect of those goods or services for which the mark has not been used. Under section 46(1), it is proposed to clarify that the five years period will start from the date on which the trade mark is actually entered on the register. This amendment is intended to remove any ambiguity, as for all other purposes, the date of registration will be the date on which the application was filed vide clause 23(2). Proviso to sub-clause (1) also provides that the Tribunal may refuse removal of the mark if it is shown that any proprietor had in fact made bona fide use of the trade mark for goods or services of the same description or associated goods or services.

It is also proposed to increase the period from 1 to 3 months in clause 47(1) (a) and (b) in which use of the trade mark, prior to the date of filing of the application for removal of the trade mark, shall be disregarded.

This is intended to prevent the registered proprietor to bypass the Act by such token use after he comes to know that an application for removal is about to be filed. Sub-clause (3), protects a mark from being removed from the register on ground of non-use if such non-use is shown to have been due to special circumstances in the trade. The clause is proposed to be modified to clarify that special circumstances in the trade will include restrictions imposed by any law or regulation on the use of trade mark in India. Consequential amendments have been made to cover services.

Clause 48.—This clause corresponds to section 48 of the existing Act and deals with registration of registered users. It is proposed to simplify the law relating to registered user by effecting necessary changes in the various provisions. In clause 48, it is proposed to delete the reference to "trafficking in trade marks" occurring in existing section 48 as the concept of trafficking in a trade mark, namely, dealing in trade mark as a commodity by itself is more imaginary than real. As a trade mark representing the goodwill of the owner's business, is an invaluable asset of industrial property, the proprietor himself would exercise due control over the manner in which the trade mark should be used by the permitted user, to protect his own reputation. Indeed, sub-clause (2) provides that the use of the mark by the registered user enures to the benefit of the proprietor and not to the user.

Clause 49.—This clause provides for registration as registered user and largely corresponds to the existing sections 49 and 52. The clause sets out the procedure for making application and such registration, on completion of which the Registrar may register the proposed user for the goods or services for which he is satisfied. Licensing of trade mark is recognised universally as an important industrial property right and as such the procedure for registration of registered user is proposed to be made simple to encourage such registration. Consequently, the consideration for the registration of registered user of a trade mark is not proposed to be extended to aspects which may affect the registration and better protection of trade marks. It is, proposed, therefore, to delete sub-sections (2) and (3) of section 49 of the existing Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958.

Clause 50.—This clause deals with the power of the Registrar to vary or cancel registration as registered user. Registration of registered user may be varied or cancelled inter alia on the ground that the registered user has used the trade mark not in accordance with the agreement or the proprietor/user has failed to disclose any material facts for such registration or that the stipulation in the agreement regarding the quality of goods is not enforced or that the circumstances have changed since the date of registration, etc. Notice and opportunity of hearing is provided before cancellation of registration.

Clause 51.—With the simplification of the procedure for registration of registered user, it is necessary to keep the Register of Trade Marks up to date. Accordingly, to ascertain whether the registered user agreement is in force, the Registrar is proposed to be empowered to require the proprietor to confirm, at any time whether the agreement, on the basis of which registered user was registered is still in force, and if such confirmation is not received within the prescribed time of three months the Registrar shall remove the entry thereof from the Register in the prescribed manner.

Clause 52.—recognises the right of registered user to take proceedings against infringement and broadly corresponds to section 51 of the existing Act. It is also clarified that the proprietor of registered trade mark will not be liable for any costs unless he enters appearance and takes part in the proceedings.

Clause 53.—This clause is new and seeks to explicitly provide that a person referred to in section 2(1) (p) (ii) being an unregistered permitted user shall have no right to institute proceeding for any infringement. This provision will encourage licensee of a registered trade mark to register his title as registered user as soon as possible.

Clause 54.—reproduces in terms of section 53 of the existing Act and enacts that a registered user will not have a right of assignment or transmission. It is clarified that where an individual registered user enters into partnership or remaining in a reconstituted firm, the use of the mark by the firm would not amount to assignment or transmission.

Clause 55.—provides that use of one of associated or substantially identical trade marks is equivalent to use of another is a reproduction of the existing section 54 of the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958. Similarly, the use of the whole of a registered mark will be deemed to be use of a part of the mark, for all purposes, other than for securing registration of such part of the mark. Sub-clause (3) contains explicit provision accordingly.

Clause 56.—This clause deals with the use of a trade mark for export trade and use when form of trade connection changes. Use of trade mark on goods for export from India constitutes use of the trade mark in India under sub-clause (1). Sub-clause (2) recognises the principle that a mere change in the form of connection in the course of trade between the proprietor of the trade mark and the goods shall not be deemed to be likely to cause deception and confusion. This corresponds to section 55 of the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958, and the amendments are mainly to cover "services".

Clause 57.—Sub-clauses (1) and (2) enable a person aggrieved to apply to the Appellate Board or the Registrar for cancelling or varying the registration of trade marks, inter alia, on the ground of contravention or failure to observe any conditions entered on the Register or absence or omission of any entry from the Register or entry wrongly remaining or without sufficient cause. Sub-clause (3) empowers the tribunal to decide any question as may be necessary in connection with the rectification. Sub-clause (4) empowers the tribunal to rectify the register on the grounds specified above on its own motion after giving an opportunity of being heard to the parties concerned. Sub-section (5) enables Registrar to rectify the register pursuant to an order of the Board to rectify the register.

Clause 58.—Sub-clause (1) empowers the Registrar to correct the Register in respect of the errors relating to the particulars of the registered proprietor or entries relating to the registered trade mark and also to make consequential amendments and alterations in the certificate of registration. Sub-clause (2) empowers the Registrar to rectify the register to correct any error or change of name, etc., on an application by the registered user after giving notice to the registered proprietor.

Clause 59.—Sub-clause (1) empowers the Registrar to alter registered trade mark which does not substantially affect the identity of the trade mark subject to such limitations as he may think fit. Sub-clauses (2) and (3) contain provisions for advertisement of the proposed alteration mentioned in sub-clause (1) above and to enable any person to oppose such alterations. Sub-clause (3) makes it mandatory for advertisement of altered trade mark in the prescribed manner. This corresponds to section 58 of the existing Act.

Clause 60.—This clause corresponds to the existing section 59 of the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958 which deals with adaptation of entries in the Register to amended or substituted classification of goods or services. This is only an enabling provision.

Clauses 61 to 69.—These clauses contain provisions relating to the registration of collective marks which are new. These provisions provide for registration of a collective mark which belongs to a group or association of persons and the use thereof is reserved for members of the group or associations of persons. Collective marks serve to distinguish characteristic features of the products or services offered by those enterprises. It may be owned by an association which may not use the collective mark but whose members may use the same. The association ensures compliance of certain quality standards by its members, who may use the collective mark if they comply with the requirements prescribed concerning its use. The primary function of a collective mark is to indicate a trade connection with the proprietor Association or Organisation.

Clauses 70 to 79.—Deal with registration of certification trade mark. The purpose of certification trade mark is to show that the goods on which the mark is used have been certified by some competent person in respect of certain characteristics of the goods such as origin, mode of manufacture, quality, etc. The proprietor of a certification trade mark does not himself deal in the goods. A certification trade mark may be used in addition to the user's own trade mark on his goods. At present section 63 of the existing Act requires the Central Government to consider an application for registration of certification trade mark. In order to simplify the procedure and since the law already provides necessary safeguards, it is proposed to vest final authority for registration of certification trade mark on the Registrar and accordingly suitable amendments have been made in different provisions contained in clauses 70 to 79. These clauses are largely based on sections 60 to 69 of the existing Act.

Clauses 80 to 83.—These clauses reproduce sections 71, 72, 74 and 75 of the existing Act containing special provisions in respect of trade marks used for textile goods. Section 73 of existing Act pertaining to Refused Textile Marks List which was maintained under the Trade Marks Act, 1940, has been deleted as being no longer necessary.

Clause 84.—This clause provides for the constitution of an Appellate Board to hear appeals against the decisions of the Registrar.

Clause 85.—This clause deals with the composition of the Appellate Board. The Board will consist of a Chairman and such number of members, not exceeding five. The places where the Board may sit will be notified by the Central Government.

Clause 86.—This clause deals with the requisite qualifications for appointment as Chairman and Members of the Board.

Clause 87.—This clause deals with the term of office as Chairman and Members of the Board and their conditions of service.

Clause 88.—This clause sets out the circumstances where the senior most member will act as Chairman and discharge his functions.

Clause 89.—This clause enables Central Government to prescribe the salaries and allowances of the Chairman and Members and other terms and conditions of their service viz. pension, gratuity and retirement benefits, etc.

Clause 90.—This clause makes provisions for the resignation of the Chairman or any Member of the Board and various grounds for their removal from the office.

Clause 91.—This clause provides for appointment and functioning of the staff of the Appellate Board, terms and conditions of service and the administrative powers of the Chairman over them.

Clause 92.—This clause makes provisions for appeals to the Board from the decisions of the Registrar and the period within which they are to be preferred.

Clause 93.—This clause empowers the Board to regulate its own procedure. The Appellate Board will have the powers of a Civil Court trying a suit under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 in respect of the matters set out in the clause. To facilitate speedy disposal of cases, the clause lays down that the Board shall not be bound by the procedure laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 but be guided by the principles of natural justice.

Clause 94.—This clause bars any court or other authority from exercising jurisdiction, powers or authority in relation to the appeals.

Clause 95.—This clause prohibits the Chairman or other Members of the Board from appearing before the Appellate Board or the Registrar after they cease to hold office.

Clause 96.—This clause provides that no interim order shall be made in any proceeding relating to an application unless copies of the appeal are furnished to the party against whom the appeal is made and an opportunity of hearing is given before adverse order is passed.

Clause 97.—This clause seeks to empower the Chairman to transfer any cases pending before one bench for disposal to any other bench either on his own motion or on the application made by any of the parties. The purpose of this is to secure proper management of the work.

Clause 98.—This clause deals with procedure for application for rectification made to the Appellate Board. This is in line with section 108 of the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958. Only the reference to High Court is replaced by Appellate Board. This also provides that certified copy of the order or judgment of the Board will be communicated to the Registrar for taking appropriate action, including amending entries in the register accordingly.

Clause 99.—This clause empowers the Registrar to appear before the Board in certain circumstances or in lieu of appearance, to file the statement in writing which shall constitute evidence in the proceeding.

It includes the manner of 'use' envisaged in the definition of use of a mark, including where a trade mark or trade description is woven in, impressed on, annexed or affixed to the goods or any package, etc. This clause corresponds to section 76 of the existing Act.

Clause 103.—A person is deemed to falsify a mark who without the authority of the proprietor makes the trade mark or deceptively similar mark or falsifies any genuine trade mark in any manner. Sub-clause (2) provides that a person is deemed to falsely apply to goods such trade mark without the assent of the proprietor on goods or services or any package containing goods, etc. It is also made clear that the burden of proving assent of the proprietor will be on the accused. This provision corresponds to section 77 of the existing Act.

Clause 104.—This clause provides penalty for applying false trade mark, trade description, etc. This clause corresponds to section 78 of the existing Act but removes the distinction between offences in relation to 'drugs' or 'food' on the one hand and other categories of goods on the other and seeks to enhance the punishment uniformly irrespective of the nature of the goods. As in many cases, a trade mark label is registered separately as a trade mark under the Trade and Merchandise Marks Act, 1958 and as copyright under the Copyright Act, the penal provisions are sought to be harmonised between the two laws. Accordingly, in clause 104, it is proposed that penalty for applying false trade mark or false trade description, etc., as enumerated in clause 104 is to be punishable with imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than six months but which may extend to three years and with fine which shall not be less than fifty thousand rupees but which may extend to two lakh rupees. However, a provision has been made empowering the court, for adequate and special reasons to be mentioned in the judgment, to impose a sentence lower than the normal punishment specified in this clause.

Clause 105.—This clause prescribes penalty for selling goods or providing services to which false trade mark or false trade description is applied. The penalty proposed is the same as sought to be provided for an offence in clause 104. In this clause, the court is also empowered to award a lower sentence of penalty for adequate and special reasons to be mentioned in the judgment.

Clause 106.—This clause which prescribes enhanced penalty on second and subsequent convictions for offences committed in clauses 104 and 105 is new and is in accordance with similar provision under the Copyright Act. It is provided that whoever has already been convicted is again convicted shall be punishable for the second and for every subsequent offence with imprisonment which shall not be less than one year but which may extend to three years and with fine which shall not be less than one lakh rupees but which may extend to two lakh rupees. The court is, however, empowered to impose a sentence of imprisonment for a term less than one year and a fine of less than one lakh rupees for adequate and special reasons to be mentioned in the judgment. This clause makes it clear that for the purpose of this clause no cognizance of any conviction made before the commencement of this Act shall be taken.

Clause 107.—This clause provides penalty for removing piece goods, etc., contrary to clause 82. It provides that if any person removes or attempts to remove for sale, these goods or cotton yarn or cotton threads which are not marked in accordance with the provisions of the Act, all such goods will be forfeited to the Government and the person shall be punishable with fine.

Clause 108.—This clause which corresponds to section 81 of the existing Act makes false representation of a trade mark as registered as an offence.

The amendment also seeks to clarify that use of symbols like "R" in circle in relation to unregistered trade mark would constitute an offence. The punishment for the offence is imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years or with fine or with both. It is also clarified that where the mark in question is registered under the law of the country outside India, the use of the word or other expression to denote such registration in foreign country is permissible.

Clause 109.—The use of any words which would lead to the belief that a person's place of business is officially connected with the Trade Mark Office is made a punishable offence with imprisonment for a term which may extend to two years or fine or with both. It is in the nature of defence available to an accused. This clause corresponds to section 84 of the existing Act.

Clause 112.—This clause which corresponds to section 85 of the existing Act empowers the court to direct the forfeiture to Government of all the goods relating to which an offence has been committed. The court may either order the forfeited goods to be destroyed or otherwise disposed of. Where an appeal against conviction lies, the appeal will also lie against the forfeiture.

Clause 113.—This clause corresponds to section 86 of the existing Act and contains provision for exemption of certain persons employed in the ordinary course of business from liability. If the person accused of an offence proves inter alia that he had at the time of commission of the alleged offence no reason to suspect the genuineness of the trade mark or trade description and that in the ordinary course of business he is employed on behalf of the other persons to apply trade mark or trade description including dyes, blocks, machines, etc., he shall not be liable.

Clause 114.—This clause prescribes the procedure where invalidity of registration is pleaded by the accused, and makes provision for stay of proceedings in certain circumstances. If the court is satisfied with the defence of invalidity of the registration, it may adjourn the proceedings for three months to enable an application for rectification of the register to be filed before the Appellate Board. If the accused proves that he has made such application, further proceedings shall stand stayed till the disposal of rectification application. On the other hand, if within the period allowed by the court, the accused fails to apply for rectification before the Appellate Board, the court is bound to proceed with the case as if registration is valid.

Sub-clause (2) provides that where any application for rectification is pending before the institution of the criminal proceedings, the court shall stay the proceedings in the prosecution pending the outcome of the rectification application and determine the charge in conformity thereto to the extent that the complainant relies on the registration of this mark. This clause corresponds to section 87 of the present Act.

However, where it is proved that an offence has been committed with the consent or connivance or is attributable to the neglect of any Director, Manager, Secretary or other officer of the company, he shall be deemed to be guilty of the offence.

Clause 116.—Sub-clause (1) provides that a court shall take cognizance of an offence under clauses 108, 109 or 110 only on complaint by the Registrar or any officer authorised by him. Proviso to this clause enables the Court to take cognizance of an offence under clause 108 (1) (c) on the basis of Registrar's certificate. Sub-clause (2) enacts that no court inferior to that of a Judicial Magistrate of the first class shall try the offence under this Act. Sub-clause (3) declares that offence under section 104, 105 or 106 shall be cognizable. Sub-clause (4) which corresponds to section 64 of the Copyright Act seeks to confer powers on a police officer not below the rank of Sub-Inspector to search and seize goods or other instruments involved in committing offence wherever found. It is made incumbent on the police officer to obtain the opinion of the Registrar on facts involved in the offence relating to the trade mark. The term 'service' has been defined in clause 2(1)(x). A number of consequential changes have been incorporated in various other clauses of the Bill. On providing protection to trade mark for 'services', an additional 10,000 applications are expected to be received per annum over and above the present work-load. For handling the additional work and for providing proper services to the customers/public, the staff and facilities of the Trade Marks Registry will require strengthening. For this an estimated expenditure of Rs. 12.30 lakhs as recurring expenditure and Rs. 2 lakhs as non-recurring expenditure towards office furniture, etc., are expected.

2. Clause 84 of the Bill provides for establishment of a Trade Marks Appellate Board for expeditious disposal of appeals on the decisions of the Registrar and for development of sound precedents and practices in this specialised branch of law. As most of the provisions already form part of the existing statute, the new provisions which are relevant in this respect are only those referred to above.

The power to make rules is, however, subject to the condition of the rules being made after previous publication.
